Daniel Kafui Toseafa,

32, South Street.

Dome, Accra.

4th August 2026

The Hiring Manager,

Fitch Attorneys,

16 Dei Street, East Legon

Accra, Ghana

Cover Letter

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my strong interest in a Pupillage position at Fitch Attorneys. As a final-year Qualifying Certificate in Law (QCL) candidate at the Ghana School of Law, I have built a practical foundation in corporate transactions, regulatory compliance, and dispute resolution. During my internship at ENSafrica, I analysed material commercial contracts as part of legal due diligence for a high-value share acquisition transaction, identifying risks and obligations for the parties involved. Fitch Attorneys' cross-border transaction work, including due diligence support on multi-jurisdictional acquisitions, reflects the kind of transactions focused, internationally minded practice I am eager to contribute to.

My background aligns closely with Fitch Attorneys' multidisciplinary practice areas in tax advisory, mergers and acquisition, and emerging technologies. As a Trainee Consultant at TaylorCrabbe, I researched and drafted memoranda used in advising clients on tax planning structures and separately conducted research spanning Energy Transition and International Securities Law, areas closely tied to Fitch's client work in energy and infrastructure. I also drafted pleadings for use in formal court proceedings. Additionally, my work reviewing commercial and institutional contracts during my National Service at GIMPA sharpened my ability to conduct risk management assessments.

Furthermore, I offer niche research in data governance and fintech policy, demonstrated through my publications in GIMPA LSA Law Journal and DataVerse Ghana, alongside a Fintech Law and Policy certification from Duke University. This positions me to add immediate value to your technology and digital commerce practice areas from day one.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my research background and transactional experience can support Fitch Attorneys' work across its tax, corporate, and technology practice groups. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Daniel Kafui Toseafa